Taco Bell Food Cashier: I was the cashier, which means I greeted the customers upon entering the restaurant. I took their orders, their cash, and then I would pass it on to my co-worker who would make the order for them.Interviewer: What was the work environment like? Taco Bell Food Cashier: It was a pretty nice environment. They were clean, they were polite. They were good with training you on the different things that you needed to be trained on.Interviewer: What was your favorite part about working there? Taco Bell Food Cashier: I actually liked the fact that I was in the front of the building and that I would be the first person to greet everyone to make their entry the best entry I could give them.Interviewer: Please describe the application and interview process. Taco Bell Food Cashier: I filled out the application. At that time, they were having on-the-spot interview and hiring so upon turning in the application, I was sent to another management manager who would do the interview part, which they would ask me how would I be good to for their company, my available hours, would I be able to work on weekends? If I'm there and I need to stay over for another crew member, would I be able to do things like that?Interviewer: What questions did the interviewer ask during the job interview? Taco Bell Food Cashier: The interview was how would you best fit our company? The flexible ... Like even though I applied for a day shift, if they needed me for night shift, would I be available to come in for them? They had different training processes that they said that ... Once the question was: we have a 30-day process. Once we train you on this and you're there for 30 days, would you feel comfortable with moving on to the next job description?Interviewer: How were you notified that you received the job? Taco Bell Food Cashier: It took them about a week and a half and they reached me through telephone.Interviewer: What set you apart from other candidates? Taco Bell Food Cashier: I mean, he said I was honest. I continued to smile the whole time. I told a couple of jokes during the interview. I just was comfortable. I wasn't real nervous.Interviewer: What other advice would you give to a job seeker looking to gain employment? Taco Bell Food Cashier: To be honest, to be open, and remain comfortable and relaxed. Because if you're nervous, they tend to wonder and get nervous, why should they have you in their company?Taco Bell Cashier Interview Video Video TranscriptInterviewer: Please describe your job title and primary duties. Taco Bell Cashier: I was a cashier, so customer service. I worked at the both on front and drive-through, so it just kind of depended on the pace as to where I was. The front was more obviously face-to-face interaction, customer service, drive-through obviously speaking clearly, making sure to read back the order, things of that nature. Handling money, you are constantly being recorded, so just kind of being honest, making sure you're not stealing anything, basically. I didn't do anything beyond cashier, so that's pretty much it.Interviewer: What was the work environment like? Taco Bell Cashier: It was a pretty fast-paced, as is pretty much all fast food. They attempted to harbor a good work environment. It was pretty decent, but once kind of the pace started to pick up, it completely changed. I mean, usually most places do, but it turned into a pretty negative environment. There was no room for mistake or anything like that, unfortunately. But there was room for growth, so you may get in a little bit of a scuffle during the fast times, but afterwards, you would be explained to why this happened and things of that nature, so there was room for growth, but bad skills during the time of need, I guess.Interviewer: What was your favorite part about working there? Taco Bell Cashier: Honestly, probably the incentives. They really, really pushed those surveys that like every drive-through, you hear about, and it's the chance to win $500. I feel like that's why most people do it, but if you got a good review, you'd get a free meal, up to $5, $10, depending on how many you got that day and things of that nature. You could get gift cards, and just kind of different things like that, depending on, like, if it was a busy holiday season, instead of free meals, you could opt to go in to enter into a drawing for a $25 gift card or something of that nature. That was pretty awesome.Interviewer: Please describe the application and interview process. Taco Bell Cashier: It was pretty simple, you know? Just the stereotypical name, birthday, where you've worked previously. I do not recall any references needed or anything like that. It was fairly simple, very, very user friendly. They had both paper and online. I did it through paper. It was a walk-in application and interview that I did, so very, very simple, very user friendly.Interviewer: What questions did the interviewer ask during the job interview? Taco Bell Cashier: It was pretty simple. They asked me kind of my skills, you know, if I'd ever had a job in fast food, which I hadn't at the time. This was my first job inside. I had worked somewhere previously in an outdoor facility, but you know, if I had ever worked with money. I was interviewing for cashier. They asked me a few math questions, to kind of gauge my math skills, just kind of quick change, stuff like that. Also, they asked me about customer service, gave me a few possible scenarios, just to kind of walk them through what I would do if an angry customer came in, if a deaf customer came in, if someone who didn't... maybe necessarily weren't able to read the menu, how I should go about that. Just things of that nature.Interviewer: How were you notified that you received the job? Taco Bell Cashier: Due to the fact that they were walk-in application interview, I actually found out that day. Then when I finally started training, it took about two or three weeks to finally get into actual training. They did one or two days. I do believe it was two days the week before I actually started up, like computer training, ServSafe, stuff like that. But, I had been offered the job the day of my interview, but I found out that that they were very, very low staffed, which is why they were doing that event.Interviewer: What set you apart from other candidates? Taco Bell Cashier: I personally like to say that I have extremely strong customer service skills. I've worked in customer service since I was 13 years old, and my whole family is customer service in one aspect or another, you know? When we greet each other, "Hello, how's your day?" You know? It's just kind of second nature. I feel like kind of being the face of the store, you know, everybody in the kitchen's in the back behind a wall, you can't see them, so I was kind of like that first face that they got to see, so I feel like my customer service interactions kind of helped set me apart from everybody else.Interviewer: What other advice would you give to a job seeker looking to gain employment? Taco Bell Cashier: I would come in with some skills. Like I said, definitely during those fast-paced times, it's definitely necessary, because when everybody's kind of in that bind, you may not have a good interaction if you were to ask a difficult question or something like that, so maybe just coming in with some skills or even asking those questions beforehand. I know some are situational, and you never think to ask until it comes about, but try to come in with a little bit of skill before kind of diving into the job. taco bell team member job description for resume. taco bell shift manager job description for resume. taco bell cashier job description for resume. taco bell cook job description for resume. taco bell food champion job description for resume. taco bell job description
